Provided that separate actions may not be instituted against the persons mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) above in respect of the same defamation.

(4) Statements are not defamatory unless they cause serious harm or are likely to seriously harm the reputation of the specific person or persons making the claim:

Provided that, for the purposes of this article, harm to the reputation of a body that trades for profit is not serious harm unless it has caused or is likely to cause serious financial loss.

Defences. Truth.

4. (1) (a) It is a defence to an action for defamation for the defendant to show that the imputation conveyed by the statements complained of is substantially true.

(b) Where the statements complained of convey two or more distinct imputations, if one or more of the imputations is not shown to be substantially true, the defence under this article does not fail if, having regard to the imputations which are shown to be substantially true, the imputations which are not shown to be substantially true do not seriously harm the claimant's reputation.

(2) It is a defence to an action for defamation for the defendant to show that all the following conditions are met: Honest opinion.

(a) the statement complained of was a statement of opinion;

(b) the statement complained of indicated, whether in general or specific terms, the basis of the opinion;

(c) that an honest person could have held the opinion on the basis of -

(i) any fact which existed at the time the statement complained of was published; or

(ii) anything asserted to be a fact in a privileged statement published before the statement complained of.

(3) The defence referred to in sub-article (2) is defeated if the claimant shows that the defendant did not hold the opinion:

Provided that this sub-article shall not apply in a case where the statement complained of was published by the defendant but made by another person ("the author"); and in such a case the defence is defeated if the claimant shows that the defendant knew or ought to have known that the author did not hold the opinion.

(4) For the purposes of sub-article (2) a statement is a "privileged statement" if the person responsible for its publication can prove in his defence that -

(a) the publication is on a matter of public interest which has already been given publicity in a manner accessible to a large audience on an established medium; or

(b) the publication is a peer-reviewed statement in a scientific or academic journal; or

(c) the publication is a report of court proceedings protected by absolute privilege in terms of article 7.

(5) The defences referred to in sub-articles (1) and (2) shall only apply where the person aggrieved is a public figure, such as when the said person:

(a) is a public officer or servant or an officer or servant of a body established by law or of a body in which the Government of Malta has a controlling interest; or

(b) is a candidate for a public office and the facts attributed to him refer to his honesty, ability or competency to fill that office; or

Provided that the truth of the matters charged may not be enquired into if such matters refer to the private life of the plaintiff and the facts alleged have no significant bearing on the exercise of the plaintiff's public functions, office, profession or trade:

Provided further that, notwithstanding the provisions of this sub-article, the defences referred to in sub-articles (1) and (2) may be raised where the matter referred to is a matter of general public interest or where the person aggrieved, although not being a public figure is involved in matters of public interest or where after giving due consideration to all the circumstances of the claim the Court is satisfied that the raising of the said defences is necessary in the interests of the proper administration of justice.

(6) Subject to the other provisions of this article, in any action for defamation under this Act, the defendant shall be entitled to plead in defence any cause for mitigation of damages as well as any plea which, if acceded to, would lead to the dismissal of the action and the defendant may submit pleas that the publication is not defamatory and that the facts as stated are true and, or that any opinion expressed is an honest opinion. The submission of one such plea does not automatically exclude the other.

Publication on
interest.

5. (1) It is a defence to an action for defamation for the defendant to show that -

(a) the statement complained of was, or formed part of, a statement on a matter of public interest; and

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-articles (3) and (4), in determining whether the defendant has shown the matters mentioned in sub-article (1), the Court must have regard to all the circumstances of the case.

(3) If the statement complained of was, or formed part of, an accurate and impartial account of a dispute to which the claimant was a party, the Court must, in determining whether it was reasonable for the defendant to believe that publishing the statement was in the public interest, disregard any omission of the defendant to take steps to verify the truth of the imputation conveyed by it.

(4) In determining whether it was reasonable for the defendant to believe that publishing the statement complained of was in the public interest, the Court must make such allowance for editorial judgement as it considers appropriate.

(5) For the avoidance of doubt, the defence under this article may be relied upon irrespective of whether the statement complained of is a statement of fact or a statement of opinion.

6. (1) The publication of a statement in a scientific or academic journal (whether published in electronic form or otherwise) is privileged if the following conditions are met:

(ii) one or more persons with expertise in the scientific or academic matter concerned.

(a) the assessment was written by one or more of the persons who carried out the independent review of the statement; and

(b) the assessment was written in the course of that review.

(3) Where the publication of a statement or assessment is privileged by virtue of this article, the publication of a fair and accurate copy of extract from or summary of the statement or assessment is also privileged.

(2) Proceedings for libel under this Act may also be instituted against any public figure who shall have made a statement in circumstances where he was aware or could have reasonably been aware or have expected that the content of his statement was going to be published in written media and in fact such content is in whole or in part so published. When the court decides that there is a likelihood that the action is capable of being resolved by agreement or mediation between the parties it shall refer the parties to mediation to be concluded within a specified period after which the action shall proceed if no agreement is reached between the parties.

(3) Where the Court decides that the action may not be determined as provided in sub-article (2) it shall proceed with the hearing of the cause.

11. (1) In assessing the sum being awarded under this Act in an action for defamation, the Court shall take into account:

(2) Should the defendant have, prior to the commencement of the proceedings, apologised and published an unreserved correction with the same importance as the original publication or published a reply submitted by the plaintiff with the same importance as the original publication, then the Court shall not award in moral damages an amount in excess of five thousand euro (€5,000).

(3) It shall be lawful to take action in respect of each and every imputation in the same case and the persons concerned in the libel may be sued either jointly or severally:

Provided that the amount of moral damages recoverable in regard to the same case shall not exceed eleven thousand, six hundred and forty euro (€11,640).

(4) In assessing the sum to be awarded in an action for defamation the Court shall also in such manner as it may consider websites.

12. (1) This article applies where an action for defamation is brought against the editor of a website in respect of a statement posted on the website.

similar to the first publication in terms of sub-article (5) and an action for defamation has not yet been instituted, the person aggrieved shall not be permitted to institute multiple actions against the same person but shall, in the action so instituted, make reference to the various publications and the Court may, in addition to the assessment conducted in terms of article 11, take such multiple publications into account when awarding damages in terms of article 9:

Provided that, where an action has already been instituted against a person in terms of this Act the claimant shall not be permitted to institute new actions for such subsequent statements but may, by application to the Court, bring such subsequent statements to the attention of the Court and the Court may, in addition to the assessment conducted in terms of article 11, take such subsequent statements into account when awarding damages in terms of article 9.

The said statement shall be published not later than the second issue of the newspaper following the receipt of the request:

Provided that when the right of reply is availed of in respect of a publication in a newspaper published at intervals of at least one week, the said statement shall be published in the issue immediately following the receipt of the request if such request is received at least four days before the publication of the said issue and not later than the second issue following the receipt of the request in all other cases.

(d) In the case of media consisting of a website, a statement in terms of sub-article (1) shall be uploaded on the website not later than the second day following which the request is received. The reply must be given the same prominence as that which was given to the statement being replied to.

(f) An editor or person responsible for the broadcasting medium or an operator of a website responsible for the uploading of a reply on a website who fails to comply with the provisions of this article may, on the application of the complainant to the Court of Magistrates in its civil jurisdiction, be ordered to publish such reply.
